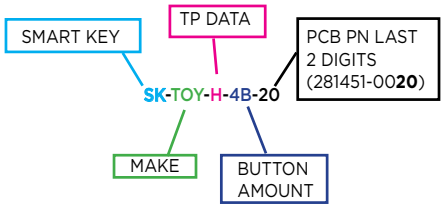
SGT Tech Tips

TOYOTA H-PROX : INFO & IDENTIFICATION

The purpose of this month's tech tip is to shed some light on how to correctly identify the correct Smart key from our New H-Prox Range.

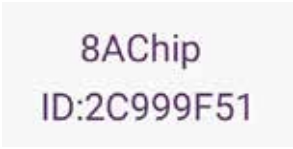
By following the identification process below you will be able to ensure that you select the Correct Smart key each time.

SGT-Part number
Please see how we have generated our part numbers to reflect the identification process.



Visual:
All "H" Smart keys in this range are Black in colour and the buttons are all in line with each other down the centre.
If your remote looks similar , but has offset buttons it will not be a H key but potentially be a key from the previous range.
Also – It is important to consider the boot button when selecting the right smart key. There are 2x variations – Sedan & SUV style. If the wrong smart key is selected the boot function will not correctly operate.
See pictures Right:

Transponder Identification:
H transponder data is 128 bit rather than 40 & 80 bit in the previous range
The Smart keys in this range – will identify as 8A on a KDX2- & will vary depending on your cloning device.
See image:

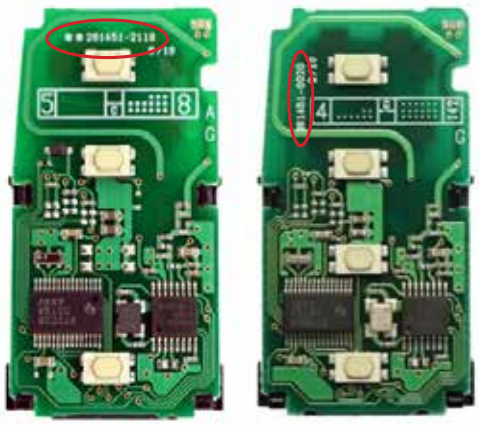


Press Chip editing to see the full page data & look at page 4. For type- will either be , 8888 or A8A8

The Page data is one way of identifying the correct transponder data for smart key's

Frequency:
The Smart keys in this range have dual frequency and pulse between 312Mhz -314Mhz.

FCCID – PCB Part number:
The Smart keys in this range – all carry the same FCCID: HYQ14FBA which is generally embossed on the Smart key shell.
This isn't the best determining factor when selecting a smart key as there will be dozens of variations of this ID.
The most accurate determinator is the Part Number located on the PCB internal to the Key shell.



An example of this part number is 281451-0020 The last 4 digits being the most important.
